

Buy stamps — by mail... help island post offices

Below you find a form ready to fill out, clip and mail to one of Maine's small island post offices. Regular readers know (from stories we've run in the past) that small island post offices are constantly in danger of being closed down by the U.S. Postal Service, because their volume is small. Selling stamps by mail is one way these important community institutions can keep up their volume, and stay in business to serve island communities.
